Hassi, our sewing centre's (NVOC) teacher and administrator, is the only believer in her family and was cruelly persecuted in the initial years for her faith. Nevertheless, she makes a point to shamelessly invite her parents and family to Christmas and Easter services at the church where her husband, Amadou, pastors.

Last year, her mom, Hadija, attended Christmas service and shortly after, started having alarming dreams.

In her first dream she saw Jesus come down from the sky, surrounded by a bright light. He stood in a beautiful field and said to her, "All that they have told you about me is true." Then he showed her his nail pierced hands.

A few nights later, she dreamt that a large truck full of firewood stopped at her front gate. The driver, whom she knew was not Jesus, came to her door and said, “See all this wood? It will all be burned just like those who don’t belong to Jesus.”

The following week, Hadija had a third dream where Jesus came to hover over her as she slept, lingering, and protecting her.

Although Hadija doesn’t doubt that these encounters were supernatural, she has yet to make a profession of faith. Please pray with us, that the Holy Spirit would soften her heart and do a mighty work to release her from long held strongholds. May our Good Father have mercy on Hadija.

Today (April 1) also marks the start of Ramadan where Muslims will fast from dawn to dusk for 30 days. Please pray with us that as they seek favour, Jesus, the True Righteousness, would reveal Himself in dreams and visions.

Thank you for your partnership in prayer,
